

Title: Road to Wi-Fi      Genre: Comedy-Drama

Logline: In remote Alaska, a friendless twelve-year-old gets an email from her supposedly dead father but, before she can reply, the town's internet crashes. She gathers a group of kids to steal an RV, head to the city and reclaim their Wi-Fi before getting caught by their parents.

Synopsis: In Happy Valley, a tiny Alaskan village, lonely kids dream of the world they see on their Smartphones. When Lucia (12), Wikipedia worm and outcast, receives an e-mail from her supposedly dead father revealing he is in Anchorage, she is ecstatic. But just as she rushes to reply, the local internet pole gets hit by an RV and the Wi-Fi crashes.

Wronged by lying mom and with no means of contacting dad, Lucia puts together a team of internet-craving kids for the plan she has in mind. MATT (parent-pleaser with a due math camp application), DIRK (deaf and with an online crush) and MONIQUE (Florida girl and social media addict) join Lucia to steal an RV and hit the road in search of Wi-Fi.

Lucia can't read paper maps, no-one understands Dirk, hostage RV-owner ALDO is tied up in the bathroom and Monique really needs to pee. With no luck nearby and much arguing, they head to Anchorage. After teaming up to steal gas, the kids start to get friendly, even with Aldo, who agrees to help Lucia when she reveals her dad's e-mail. But when the team encounters a hungry bear, Aldo stays behind in order to save the kids. With only 10 miles to go, the kids get caught by their parents and are taken to a motel to wait out a snowstorm. Lucia's mom warns her about her dad and they get into a fight. With hope lost, Aldo reappears to the rescue in a dog sled and the kids sneak out while their parents are asleep. They get to Anchorage and the Wi-Fi is back! Lucia e-mails her dad and sets up a place to meet. Dirk tells his crush he is deaf; Matt applies for Masterchef instead; and Monique is living in the moment. Lucia waits for her dad but he is a no-show. Still, the gang is there to cheer her up – they are the missing piece of family she needed. Once back to Happy Valley, the kids meet up every Tuesday (Wi-Fi off).
